

AMELIA HARRIS

Year of call
2026

Amelia Harris graduated with a Law degree from the University of Cambridge and completed the Bar Course at City Law School.

Before starting her legal studies, Amelia worked as a public law paralegal. In this role, she was involved in the Infected Blood Inquiry representing more than 300 victims. She has also worked in the areas of education law and judicial review. Before this, Amelia was a legal assistant at a Welsh conveyancing firm.

Amelia has spent time volunteering for an Alabama-based criminal justice organisation focusing on conviction and sentence appeals, death row cases and mistreatment by authorities. During the Covid-19 pandemic she volunteered for Women's Aid.