Selected Cases

A Local authority v DD (2023)

Leading junior in care proceedings concerning allegations against two parents of a young baby who suffered multiple rib fractures and serious head injuries, including brain damage, in their care. Local Authority case was that one, other or both parents had caused the injuries; had colluded to conceal what had really happened and had neglected to seek medical care in a timely manner. Susannah's client was found not to have injured the baby.

A Local Authority v XX (2023)

Representing children in care proceedings in the High Court whose father had murdered their mother while the children were present. Case involved parallel criminal proceedings, litigant in person and application for termination of parental responsibility.

A Local Authority v AA and Other [2022] EWHC 2321 (Fam)

Junior counsel acting for a father in care proceedings where client alleged to have inflicted serious non-accidental head injuries on baby who he claimed had fallen from the bed with complex medical evidence and possibility of rare medical condition affecting causation. Judge found LA had not met the required standard of proof and the parents were able to resume caring for their baby on an unsupervised basis.

A Local Authority v BB (2021)

Care proceedings, led. Representing main carer parent alleged to have harmed child due to fabricated and induced illness ("FII"). The subject child, who was close to secondary school age at the time proceedings were issued, was unable to walk and used a wheelchair. Susannah acted in the fact-finding hearing and the final hearing that followed.

A Local Authority v CC (2021)

Care proceedings, representing mother who objected to and was obstructing life-saving treatment for her young child who had leukaemia. Client had significant communication difficulties and required both an interpreter and intermediary due to first language not being English and due to a learning difficulty. Client was highly resistant to Western medicine and treatment methods and required a high level of support to provide instructions, understand advice and follow the proceedings and respective roles of the parties. This case required a very careful balance of support and advocacy on behalf of a very vulnerable client.

Gloucestershire CC v F (2019)

Instructed by the local authority in a case involving multiple fractures to a very young baby with a rare genetic condition and complex causation issues.

London Borough of Enfield v K & S (2019)

Representation of a father in care proceedings concerning allegations of life threatening non-accidental injury to a child and domestic violence.

London Borough of Enfield v A (2018)

Representation of a child in the High Court in care and inherent jurisdiction proceedings concerning parental refusal to allow blood transfusion.

M v L (2017)

Representation of a child in private law High Court proceedings concerning international child abduction, conflict of jurisdiction and residence.

London Borough of Enfield v T (2016)

Representation of a parent in Care proceedings involving allegations of physical and psychological abuse and proposal for international special guardianship arrangement.

London Borough of Islington v G & D (2014)

Representation of parent in care proceedings involving proposal for international adoption of subject child.

London Borough of Newham v J (2013)

Representation of parent in care proceedings involving international trafficking and sexual exploitation.

Hertfordshire County Council v G (2012)

Representation of parent with learning difficulties concerning allegations of serious non-accidental injury and neglect.

London Borough of Tower Hamlets v M (2010)

High Court wardship proceedings. Representation of child after attempted murder of baby by parent.

Personal Injury

Susannah specialises in claimant personal injury work based on recent and non-recent sexual and physical abuse in institutional settings such as schools, places of detention and care homes and in the context of the care system. Susannah has also been instructed on behalf of defendants where her knowledge of the family jurisdiction and practice was required.

Susannah is frequently instructed on behalf of individuals who have suffered abuse as children at the hands of carers and teachers; and claimants in group actions based on negligence and vicarious liability against the Ministry of Justice, local authorities, organs of the Catholic Church and other religious organisations in relation to institutions including:

- Medomsley Detention Centre; and
- St William's Children's Home

Susannah set up and is head of the Claimant Child Abuse group at 7BR. As a highly experienced former criminal practitioner and specialised rape prosecutor Susannah is used to dealing with the difficulties often encountered in sexual abuse cases and in advising on matters of disclosure, public interest immunity and privilege.

Susannah is regarded as a highly skilled advocate with a sensitive approach to cases and as someone that clients find open and easy to talk to about difficult and distressing matters.
